NOW,

Riest for the day is passing, and you lie dreaming on; The others have buckled their armor, Am others have cheesed their armor,
"An I forth to fight are gone;
A place in the ranks awaits you,
Each man has some part to play...
The past and the future are nothing
In the face of the stern today.

Rise from your dreams of the future,
Of gaining some hard fought field,
Of storming some air fortness,
Or bidding some giant yield;
Your future has deeds of Jory.
Of honor God grant it may!
But your arm will never be stronger

Or the need so great as loday Risel if the past detains 3 or, Her sunshine and storms forget; No claims so unworthy to hold you As those of vain regret; Sad or bright, she is lifeless forever,

Cast her phantom arms away, Nor look back save to learn the lesson Of a nobler strife today. Bise! for the day is passing!

The low sound that you scarcely hear is the enemy marching to battle— Arisel for the fee is here! Stay not to sharpen your weapons, Or the hour will strike at last, Then from dreams of a coming battle
You may wake to find it past.

Indian Scales in Demand.

A Monroe street hair dealer: "If you know where I can get any Indian scalps I shall be obliged to you for that information. Indian scalps, like buffalo heads, are becoming the world that some people want is an Indian scalp, and yet there are people who want just that sort of curiosity. I had an Indian belt not long ago which had nine scalps hung to it, and I sold it to a man on the north side is that travelers buy them first hands as cari-caine, and pay the Indians just what they ask. Another reason is that since the govlazier than ever and make less than former-

It would not surprisome to see some fearful catastrophe happen in the near future by reason of the general, I might say pernicious, employment of electricity as an agent of civilization. I think we have roused up a force that we may be unable to control. Take the electric overhead railroads. They are driven by a power impossible to compute, and yet that force sometimes subsides for hours to gether, and the ablest electricians are neither able to awaken it again or tell why it ceases to operate; and yet it will start again as sud-denly as it stopped, apparently independent of human control. Within a few days I have seen an electric light wire set on fire by becoming wet, and burn as brightly as a carbon, and some such accident happens during every rain. The laws governing this mighty force are but little understood, and there is reason to fear that it may yet become dan-gerously defiant of control.—Interview in St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The bass viol is the most expensive of all musical instruments to its owner. Its first cost is not the greatest expense. It is so large and awkward to carry around that it is con tinually getting injured by accidents which would not happen to smaller instruments. Somebody may kick a hole in it by dancing against it in a room, or it may be knocked against something while carrying it around. It is most frequently injured on street cars while the musician is carrying it to the place where he has to play. After a man has had an instrument for a long time he comes to look upon it as actually worth all the money that it has cost him, and in this way a base viol sometimes is valued at $1,000 or so by its owner. In fact, I really knew a musician who sued a railroad company for $5,000 for a viol smashed in an accident, and he actually got $3,800,--Interview in St. Louis Globe Democrat

The Czar's Luck.

The czar of all the Russias still lives, but it is only by the merest good luck. The latest attempt to make him shuffle off consisted of the explosion of a chest of dynamite at the railway station of Peterhof, a small place near St. Petersburg. The stuff went off a little too soon and killed a signalman. In the meantime the czar was far enough away for safety, as he nearly always contrives to be when anything unpleasant is taking place. It is evidently unnecessary for him to remain shut up within the stone walls of Gatschina now. He can walk and ride about in the open world without having the least fear of injury, unless, indeed, some of these infernal machines happen to go off at an unlucky moment for him some day. But the chances of such a catastrophe are very small, apparently.—Pittsburg Bulletin.

If thou workest at that which is before thee, following right reason seriously, vigorously, calmly, without allowing anything to distract thee, but keeping thy divine part pure, as if thou shouldst be bound to give it back immediately, if thou holdest to this, axpecting nothing, fearing nothing, but satisfied with thy present activity according to nature and with heroic truth in every word thou utterest, thou wilt live happy, there is no man who is able to prevent this, -M. Antoninus.

I take ordinary wrapping paper, cream colored, fold it into double sheets, 12 by 14 inches in size, and sew the sheets together in a book for scribbling poems, short stories and candom thoughts. Thus they are kept together for future reference, and there is a saving of paper, which is quite an item of expense to even the "little unknown."— COUNTERFEIT GEMS.

PRECIOUS JEWELS PRODUCED BY SKILLFUL CHEMISTS.

Not Impossible to Make a $10,000 Gem from $5 Worth of Sparks-How to Detect Francis-Interesting Facts About Valuable Stones

"That is a very beautiful stone," said a reporter to a Washington jeweler, calling the latter's attention to a dark purple gem of considerable size, with a vivid red fire, which lay in a satin lined box within the glass show case. "It seems very cheap, too, for its apparent value."

"It is cheap for the reason that it is not a real stone," replied the dealer. "An imitation!"

"No, it is not an imitation. On the con-trary it does not at all resemble, to the eye of an expert, any gem that is known in nat-ure. It is simply a chemical product, that is all. You see, the chemists, having abandoned the manufacture of gold as hopeless, are trying now to make precious stones artificially, and with some success. I dare say you are not aware that actual, bona fide diamonds have been produced in this way. And yet diamonds have been artificially manufactured for years. An English experimenter first accomplished the feat, and it has been successfully repeated many times since. The only trouble is that the diamonds turned out by chamical artifice are almost microscopic, mighty scarce. You never can account for and therefore practically worthless. At the people's tastes. Now, about the last thing in exposition in London some dozens of them were exhibited, gummed on paper, under a magnifying glass. Every effort has been made to increase their size, though in vain. A, parently the production of diamonds big enough to be worth anything could only be for $35. I have a bunch of hair here—it isn't accomplished by forces and elements working

One as it is found in nature, though imitations are plentiful enough. The precious stones made by the chemists, if such they may be called, are new inventions to the lapidary. ernment has got to taking such interest in Many of them are very beautiful. This pur-Indians, taking care of them, the Indians are placed you have asked about, for instance, lazier than ever and make less than former is lovely. It has been named the violane du cap,' and is as attractive a jewel as many natural ones four times its price. French chemists are the great experts in this branch of manufacture, and their inventions are usually kept secret. Some of the artificial gems they make are doubtless pretty costly to produce as for that matter are the microscopic diamonds, which are as expensive to turn out as good big ones in the market,"
"Are rubies made artificially?"

"Yes; but not with entire success. Two or three years ago certain French chemists claimed that they had discovered a process for absolutely manufacturing big rubies in the laboratory by fusing together small ruby sparks, such as can be bought for almost nothing. If you will remember that the value of the ruby is nearly double that of the diamond, the color and quality otherwise being first rate, you can imagine what an agitation such an announcement occasioned among the dealers. Nor was the announcement altogether without truth, as appeared from the report made on the subject by the celebrated Professor Friedel, of the French institute, who said that he found the chemical composition, density, crystalline form and refractive power of the artificial specifind was a slight variation in the shape of the tiny air bubbles. However, the delers threatened to prosecute any one for fraud who ventured to issue the artificial rubies as real ones, and, inasmuch as their combina tion is very rich and powerful and the laws against selling counterfeit jewels for actual ones is very strict in France, the fused rubles have never got upon the market. It was a $5 worth of sparks," "The 'sparks' you speak of are real rubies, of course?

"Oh! yes. That is the trouble about rubies There are plenty of them, but very few good sized ones. The greatest ruby fields in the world are those of Burmah, where the natives have for centuries been digging for them in the most primitive and therefore most un-profitable manner. They are found in quantitles in successive strata, with layers of earth and clay between at a little depth below the surface soil. But nearly all are so small as to be scarcely valuable. Only oc-casionally a big one, with the true pigeon's blood color, turns up.
King Theebaw's Jewels.

"There used to be wonderful accounts of the jars full of large rubies which King Theebaw of Burmah had in his palace at Manda-lay, but not many were found by the British when they looted the city. Perhaps they were carried off and hidden away by the na-

"Curiously enough, the anticipation of the finding of these hoards of the king by the English soldiers had quite a depressing effect upon the ruby market, a lowering in the value of the gem being feared as a result of a sudden throwing of great supplies before the purchasing public. Rubies are also largely obtained in Ceylon, where the natives make a business of hunting for them in the streams that come down from the huge cone of moun-tains in the central part of the island, where it has been supposed for centuries that a great matrix of rubies existed above the clouds, from whence those found in the rivers are washed down. Nor is such a theory entirely without reason, though nobody has been able to find the matrix yet. When discovered, it will afford a profitable opportunity for the use of a few pounds of dynamite.'

"Are there pearls from Ceylon?" "Yes, the waters thereabout are a great pearl fishing ground. Between the harvests the natives wait patiently for the cysters to grow. Pearls are largely counterfeited, as you know, the best imitations being made of hollow glass beads lined with transparent wax and scales taken from living fish. The pearl is chiefly composed of carbonate of lime, with films of animal membrane between its many layers. These membrane films becoming dry gives the pearl its hardness. The substance of the pearl is a slimy secretion of the cyster, which is ordinarily deposited upon the in-terior surface of the shell, forming what is called mother of pearl. Grains of sand or other foreign bodies, lodging within the J. W. Carroll. shell, produce an irritation of the tissues which causes the deposit of a pearly matter around them for the cyster's protection. This matter is deposited, layer after layer, until the pearl is formed. By the artificial introduction of fimty particles pearls can be made to grow. The Chinese in this manner compel a certain kind of fresh water musse

The Northern Mail.

The Sierra Valley Leader has this: In regard to our remark in the Leader two weeks ago concerning the N. O. & O. B. R. leaving Reno before the mail train arrived Mr. Bird, the P. M. at Chat, sends us a REWARD OF $17,000 FOR copy of a letter written by James L. Wilder, Superintendent of the P. O. Department at San Francisco, stating that a mail pouch will be sent by the early train with mail for this northern country. We hope such a pouch will be sent, but it is very bard to get mail sent on a train other than the mail train, as P. O. employes are worked about to their capacity in the San Francisco office on regular mail traine. Mr. Bird thinks we could get a daily mail service from the Summit here if a petition was gotten up. We should have our Win-ter mail all come that way, and a daily service could no doubt be had all the year around, although it would be longer in reaching here than from Truckee in the Summer season. A daily service is needed to this place all the year 'round.

WHAT IS

It is that impurity in the blood, which, accumulating in the glands of the neck, produces unsightly lumps or swellings; which causes painful running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which developes ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or the many other manifeststions usually ascribed to "humors;" which, fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. Being the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.

How Can CURED It Be

By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplish often when other medicines have failed, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. Some of these cures are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. "My daughter Mary was afflicted with scrof-alous sore neck from the time she was 22 months old till she became aix years of age. Lumps formed in her neck, and one of them after growing to the size of a pigeon's egg, became a running sore for over three years. We gave hins Flume and Ditch; Henry Heidenreich her Hood's Sarsaparlla, when the lump and appeared, and now she seems to be a healthy Heidenreich Ditch and the Owens Ditch; shild." J. S.
